Second Talent Window

If the talent is not operating the teleprompter, PrompterPro 4 offers a second resizable window that can be positioned on a second monitor with perfectly synchronized scrolling so you can operate the prompter for your talent.

Adjust Eyeline Indicator

Is the eyeline indicator a little high or low? Just click on it and drag to reposition – the change is automatically mirrored in the second window. Or make it more transparent or opaque. You can also choose to have the eyeline indicator on the left, right or both sides of the prompter window.

Easily Change Your Display

When you're on set, every second counts. All controls for text size, font, line spacing and inverting text for black-on-white display are easily accessible right on the main page – no hunting for preferences or searching through menus.

Time is Key

One awesome new feature is the timer showing not only how long you've been reading, but with a feature only found on the most expensive teleprompters, which is the total estimated read time, based on the length of the script and how fast you're reading through it.

Quick Search

Have a long script and want to jump to a certain phrase without scrolling and scrolling and scrolling? Use the QuickSearch feature, available both in the Edit Window and the Operator Window, to instantly jump where you want.

Mirrored Text

For the ultimate in professional teleprompting, with one click, the text on the talent window can be reversed. Use any font, accented characters, and even right-reading languages.

Import and Edit

If you already have a premade script in either .txt or .rtf format, you can simply import the document. Wording sound a little awkward in a section? Want to make an on-the-spot script revision? This is very common. No hassle. Just click the edit button, make your change, click done and keep prompting!
